In a sign of growing tension between President Donald Trump and his Attorney General Jeff Sessions, Trump said he was disappointed to learn that Sessions did not order the Justice Department to pursue charges against former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and former Democratic National Committee Chairwoman Debbie Wasserman Schultz. A December 2016 email exchange between former Justice Department official Bruce Ohr and Fusion GPS co-founder Glenn Simpson, who hired the firm to investigate Trump and his allies, has renewed interest in Clinton's use of a private email server while serving as the nation's chief diplomat. The Ohr-Simpson email includes Ohr forwarding information to Fusion GPS about the Clinton campaign's ties to Russia. Trump claims Ohr told him about a report alleging that Wasserman Schultz and Clinton's campaign chairman John Podesta received polling information from Russian sources. Trump alleges that this report was part of a "rigged system" that allowed the Clinton campaign to gain an advantage in the 2016 presidential election. "Just out: The FBI
