So I just read the blog post "Simple solution to self-resolving DbContext Lifetime issues" It is very helpful and I love it. But I didn't understand why the author created a small wrapper class to wrap the IDbContext in the most simple scenario. Here is the code excerpt from the blog post. public class SimpleContextResolver : IDisposable where TContext : IDbContext, new() { private readonly Func _getContext; public SimpleContextResolver(Func getContext) { _getContext = getContext; } public void Dispose() { Dispose(true); } protected virtual void Dispose(bool disposing) { if (disposing) { _getContext(); } } protected virtual void Dispose(bool disposing, bool ifUnmanaged) { if (disposing) { Dispose(ifUn
