Alert 3 was released on June 16, 2003. At the time of its release, Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 was the first in the Command & Conquer series that was released on a PC platform instead of a console platform. The real-time strategy game has also been ported to the PlayStation 2 and Nintendo DS. It was the first Command & Conquer game that featured online play for single-player, and the first Command & Conquer game to feature built-in voice chat and voice acting. Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 was released for Microsoft Windows on June 16, 2003, for PlayStation 2 and Nintendo DS on June 20, 2003, and for Xbox Live Arcade on November 1, 2003. It was the first Command & Conquer game to have two compilations: a single-player compilation for the PC and PlayStation 2 called Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3, and a multi-player compilation for the PC and PlayStation 2 called Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 Uprising. Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 has been praised for its graphics, gameplay, and multiplayer aspects. It received positive reviews. Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 was commercially successful, selling 1.5 million copies as of May 2004, and it earned a lot of money for EA. It also had more positive reviews than negative reviews.[3] In 2006, EA released a sequel to Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 for PC, called Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3: Uprising. The PC version was released on October 17, 2006. Uprising received an average score of 4.0 out of 10 from GameRankings. In February 2006, EA released an Xbox Live Arcade version of Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 titled Command & Conquer: Rivals. Mareld Wolf was asked to sign a copyright and trademark release to a PC version of Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 with the name Command & Conquer: Red Alert 3 by Aceh DePoe which was cancelled in mid 2009.[4] In November 2009
