Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a high-pressure discharge lamp in which a plurality of discharge tubes are arranged in parallel to each other. 2. Description of the Related Art High-pressure discharge lamps such as metal halide lamps have been recently used for the purpose of replacing conventional fluorescent lamps. When a high-pressure discharge lamp is employed as a lighting device for a back light, a light source for a front light or a liquid crystal display, a large amount of light is required in the case of a metal halide lamp. To satisfy such a requirement, the metal halide lamp has a high-pressure discharge lamp in which a plurality of discharge tubes are arranged in parallel to each other. The high-pressure discharge lamp includes a cylindrical outer tube whose inside is divided into two or three by an insulation member having one or more through-holes, and a cylindrical inner tube arranged inside the outer tube. A metal halide is sealed inside the outer tube and the inner tube. In addition, a discharge space is formed between the outer tube and the inner tube.
