When his friend's family gets to know about their love, they decide to end the relationship. Later on, he tries to talk to Aisha's father, but fails to impress him. Finally, he decides to follow her to her hometown, which is a Muslim dominated area, in search of justice. He succeeds in finding her father, but he is then attacked by her uncle. During the fight, Aisha tries to save him but she accidentally falls into a well. A lawsuit is filed against him. But as all the witnesses and evidence point out that the girl was the one who fell into the well, Vinod is trapped. But his parents and friends come to his rescue and he manages to get out of trouble, after marrying the Muslim girl. But he soon discovers that she doesn't love him and that she doesn't want to continue the marriage. He comes to know that the Muslim girl's uncle had planted fake evidence against him in court. He is jailed and left without any support from his own family. The film is based on the real life story of a Malayali Nair (Kerala) boy, Nivin Pauly, who fell in love with a Muslim girl. He had to move from his Nair home to live with her. Pauly, who is now a full time actor, wrote the story and plays his character in the film. Promotion The film has undergone a major round of promotion, including the launch of a book titled Kochi Café: A Broken Love Story in Kerala, during which Pauly interacted with audience. The book is about his love story. A special screening was held at Film School Kodakkaval, Thiruvananthapuram on 7 November 2009. The original song has been shot in a South-Indian Cinema, with an Indian male cast, a first for a South-Indian film. The film has been titled as 'Kochi café' since it is set in Kerala, the state of Kerala. Music The original soundtrack and background score for the film are composed by Salim-Sulaiman. It is their second collaboration after the hit Malayalam film, Arputham. The songs are composed and sung by both Asha and Darshan. The first song, "Vidyao Veena", is a duet song, sung by Asha and Darshan. The songs are available on the album Kochi Café: A Broken Love Story, released by Ge
