The New York Rangers this morning confirmed that they have recalled forward Robin Kovacevic from the AHL's Hartford Wolf Pack. This creates room for Carl Hagelin to return to the NHL and gives the Rangers a much needed energy winger to counteract Henrik Lundqvist's tendency to seem drawn to playing the puck on his goaltender. If you're reading this in a vacuum, that's actually rather exciting, and it would have gotten my Game 1 pick for the Final to moving forward, were it not for the fact that he is actually +0.83 in two full NHL seasons. In a second I will explain the logic behind his -1.06 on-ice numbers that, coupled with the fact that one of the Lightning's defensive pairings just won the Cup, means that any dive his uni forces us to make against them today should be like licking a car battery. Start with the good. Kovacevic is a solid defenseman. He's managed -1.1 on-ice SAT at even-strength, meaning that he had a negative SAT% while on the ice. That's top-of-the-league. Top of the league. He has 15 shots on goal, including 5 at even-strength, and he's had an average EV xG
