Answer: The serial number of a computer is to identify whether you buy the computer, or if you borrow the computer from someone else. This serial number is unique for the computer. You can get the serial number of a computer by pushing the reset button or holding down the power button for several seconds and hitting F9. Click here for Windows 7 serial number, or serial number of any other operating system. How to get the serial number of your computer: Open Control Panel and click About button to go to About Windows information window. Then on the bottom of the information window, click the Link to additional tools button to open the link to 'Change system properties'. In the link, click System Properties. If the language you are using is not English, click the + button to choose other language. Click the Change button next to the Serial number item. The serial number of your computer will be shown on the screen. Delete the serial number of your computer: Windows 7 automatically generates a serial number based on the model of 1cb139a0ed
