I have a UIView, and its subviews are static tables. I want the labels/borders/image/font color/etc of the static tables to be the same as of the parent UIView. (doesnt matter if its color/label/border/font-color changes, i want it to follow the UIView color while the cells are selected). (I want all the static tables to look like one view, not as different table views) how to do this? I have tried overriding the settings, getting the UITableViewCell. I've also tried to override the settings, but then it doesnt recalculate the settings for the labels/borders... Note: i dont want the cells to be selected nor selected color to be any different from the view's color, just the color of the labels/borders/etc are same as of the view's color. Thanks. A: try this below link may be help to you. Neurex 570a42141b
