Remote desktop gaming is great. Whether you're streaming a game from your desktop to your TV or laptop, or from a virtual desktop to a remote laptop or desktop, it provides a satisfying high-end remote gaming experience. Unfortunately, most remote desktop tools rely on a heavy client / server infrastructure that requires constant, high-bandwidth connections to the server. But when you're streaming a game, your connection will likely be spotty, inconsistent, and, in some cases, downright bad. That's why I designed Rainway: to help remote streamers get the best experience possible. Rainway takes control of your desktop computer, distributes it across multiple machines, and makes them run simultaneously. Using Rainway, you can tweak your remote gaming experience to always look and feel like you're sitting at home. You can even stream a game directly to your smartphone to continue playing while you're away from your gaming rig. So before you decide to add a new laptop to your collection, take a peek at this tool. It's definitely a game changer.
