PaneKiller Download

PaneKiller is a program I have started writing because I am tired of all the folders on my desktop taking up the space I need for my most used programs, documents, and even my Internet browser bookmarks. I had started to simply just use my desktop as a launching pad for launching applications and files, but I found this approach to be cumbersome. So, when I found a somewhat similar program called Quick Folders by Leon Newton, I decided to port his program over to a stand-alone application. At the time, I wanted to port his program over to an application as well, as I could see that most folders in an operating system have more than the programs needed to launch them, and are overkill for just launching some files. This program was written for the purpose of just keeping my frequently used programs in the most accessible place for me, while my browser bookmarks, documents and other data are kept in other folders, just not in the taskbar. Now that the program is finished, I thought it would make for a nice, and free, program to add to my Windows Resource Kit - just in case you want a similar program you can use. If you are a beginning user of Windows, and are trying to get acquainted with the various File and Folder Management concepts, this program is specifically made for you. If you are an intermediate Windows user, and simply need to keep your frequently used programs together with your documents and other data, this is the program for you. And if you are a seasoned Windows user, and are tired of having your programs and your data scattered around, this is the program for you! If you want to use the program a lot, you can set options that will allow you to change the size of the pane for the tray area, or even set up a free space layout, where your most frequently used applications are kept in their own tab, leaving your documents, bookmarks, and everything else for the rest of the tab. This program is FREE as a trial, and only requires Internet access for updates. After the trial expires, your registered version will expire as well, allowing you to get a full version. Windows Versions Supported: Any version of Windows from 2000 onwards. Mac Versions Supported: Windows versions from Mac OS X 10.3.9 onwards. (PaneKiller will not work on earlier Mac OS X versions due to the operating system used by the original version of PaneKiller. OS X versions before 10.3.9

What's New In?

PaneKiller is a program which scans all the files and programs available on your computer and displays them in a menu. It can be invoked from the Windows Start menu, or accessed by right-clicking on the Start button. There are two ways in which PaneKiller may be invoked: 1. By clicking on the taskbar icon of the program PaneKiller. 2. By dragging the PaneKiller menu from the Start menu to the taskbar area. PaneKiller is configurable and easy to use, providing you with a menu of all the files and programs that are available on your PC or on any particular drive. The PaneKiller menu displays the icons of all these files and programs, grouped together. It also displays the contents of all the folders (including the system folders, such as the Program Files folder) in the same menu, and displays documents as thumbnails. While the PaneKiller menu can be accessed by right-clicking on the Start button or by clicking the taskbar icon, it also can be invoked by a mouse click anywhere on the screen. On a desktop, the PaneKiller menu can be accessed by clicking anywhere on the screen. (The menu can be shown to be the size of the screen that it is on, or the entire desktop as it is now displayed on any screen.) If you need to open multiple documents or programs at the same time, PaneKiller will open them all in a new, temporary window, and you can use your mouse or keyboard to navigate through these windows. To close the window, just select the Close tab and click on 'X' in the corner. If the window is a long document, you may need to scroll through it by using your mouse wheel or your trackpad. You can also drag this window with the mouse and drop it (using the icon in the bottom-left corner of the window) to your desktop. This full-screen, menu-based way of working with files and programs gives you quick access to your files and programs, and lets you easily look for files that you need to modify or use right away, while you are working on other files or programs. With PaneKiller, you can use the start menu as a menu, and the start menu as a Window. With PaneKiller, you can have your start menu at the left of your screen. To get to your computer programs, documents, pictures
