The fastest and easiest way to change your product key, recovery key or license code. Very easy to use, and saves you the time you would have spent searching for your product key, recovery key or license code. Product Key Changer works on both 32-bit and 64-bit systems. As compared to other similar programs, it also provides a more friendly interface and excellent user experience. Despite these great features, it still lacks a part of the application. For example, the product key information is stored on the hard drive. Also, some users may find this program less responsive than they are used to in other products. However, it's still one of the best choices for a product key changer. Product Key Changer is an approachable application designed to retrieve and display the serial numbers of Windows and Microsoft Office as well as to change them to anything else. It features intuitive options that can be tackled even by those less experienced with such apps. The tool particularly comes in handy in case you have lost or misplaced these important product keys, which are necessary when attempting to reinstall the OS or Microsoft Office applications. 1. Field of the Invention
The present invention relates to a disk drive, and more particularly, to a method of reducing head wear, which can be employed in the disk drive.

2. Description of the Related Art
A hard disk drive (HDD) is a data storage device that uses magnetic recording technology to store and retrieve data. HDDs use one or more rotatable disks on which data is stored in concentric tracks, which are divided into sectors. Typically, each sector stores a predetermined amount of user data. The HDD includes a disk head which magnetizes and reads the stored data on a sector by sector basis. The disk head is positioned above a desired track of a rotating disk by a positioning servo system. A head of the disk drive is designed to move to a desired track of the disk. However, as the disk rotates at a high speed, a head of the disk drive is subjected to aerodynamic drag from the surrounding air, which causes the head to deflect from the intended track. Therefore, the positioning servo system moves the head to compensate for the deflection. A head of the disk drive also contacts a surface of the disk while the head is moved from one track to another. In some embodiments, the contact between the head and the disk generates wear on the head, which can cause the head to fail. The wear on the head caused by the contact between the head and the disk has been increased as the flying height of the head is
