The question is can we get to that, where is to the ethics on the internet. We should be able to have the debate and have the government regulate it. And just like in other areas we have already, where do we want to be with internet use in the 21st century? We will also be talking about the idea that as we get better as a society maybe we will eventually as a species have a more ethical internet. This is one of the books we have read and were inspired by, and we will be talking about at the time. It was written by Dr. Daniel Gardner, who is a psychologist in Illinois. He also is the director of the Institute of Internet Ethics, and he wrote the book 'Ethics beyond high school.' I really love the idea of how we use the internet and we can be more responsible with our use of the internet and I have read the book before and I think we need to have a conversation about our use of the internet and what that might mean in our personal lives and in our social lives and what that might mean for our future as a species. So we'll talk about that this afternoon. We will be talking about 'Ethics beyond High School' which is a book written by Dr. Daniel Gardner, who is a psychologist in Illinois and he also wrote the book 'Ethics beyond high school.' I think we need to have a conversation about our use of the internet and what that might mean in our personal lives and in our social lives and what that might mean for our future as a species. I think we will discuss this, and we will be looking at the book, and also we will be looking at Dr. Daniel Gardner's website. We are going to do a little bit of a tour and we are going to be looking at his website and the book. It is really inspiring to me that you can do things to make the world a better place. There are ways we can work together and I think that is really what we want to do. And I think that there are ways we can be more responsible with the use of the internet. I think we can make it a good use of time and we can have a good time and we can still be responsible and we can still be good people 77a5ca646e
