Q: Access access to a sheet in excel VBA I want to store the data of all the past sheets in a new sheet with the name "Backup". The code below works fine, but I just want it to not delete the old sheets. What should I change? Sub Backup() Dim ts As Worksheet For Each ts In Worksheets ts.Copy Before:=Sheets("Backup") 'Copy filter from "Current" Worksheet With ActiveSheet .UsedRange.Offset(1).Copy .Name =.Name & "(Backup)" .UsedRange.EntireColumn.AutoFit End With End With Next End Sub A: Here is another option that does not require looping. Sub Backup() 'Add these 2 to the bottom of your code Dim Backup As Worksheet Dim wsCurrent As Worksheet Set Backup = Sheets.Add With Backup .Name = "Backup" End With 'Clear the used range With ActiveSheet .UsedRange.Clear End With 'Copy "Current" Worksheet to "Backup" With Worksheets("Current") .Range("A1").CurrentRegion.Copy Destination:=Backup.Range("A1") End With 'Paste unique values and filters from "Current" Worksheet to "Backup" Backup.Range("A1").Value =.Range("A1").Value Backup.Range("C1").AutoFilter Backup.Range("C1").RemoveDuplicates End Sub This will create a backup of current. Sheets.Add(backup.name) allows you to name and easily locate your backup sheets once you have them. In regards to looping, it is better to loop using a Range, rather than working on each Worksheet one by one. A Range will loop through each row, that way you don't need a loop to achieve what you want
