The Reduce tool is a window that reduces the size of the art object on your screen. Select the art you want to reduce and then type a number in the text box to determine the size in pixels. When you're finished, click OK. In the project that opens, the larger version of the art object is still available on the canvas, but the canvas is smaller. You can use the number in the text box to erase a selection of art or to create a new brush from scratch. You can combine the Eraser with any number of special brushes created by Photoshop's artists (see the Brush Tip section). Figure 3-17. Your artwork now appears in a smaller size. * Correct The Correct tool is an easy way to fix a selected object. If, for example, you accidentally created a straight line when you should have created a curved line, the Correct tool can help. I asked those of you who read my blog regularly for your personal tips on the best new TV dramas. Here's what I got back: "Life is Strange is a brilliant new series based around a recent teen suicides. It comes from the writer of Lipstick Jungle, and has a wonderful cast including Gemma Arterton, Jessie Buckley, Thandie Newton and Ethan Hawke. I'm starting to watch again now." Jill from Kingston "The most underrated drama at the moment is the drama of life, Locked Up. I'm watching it on ABC and LOVE it. It's great to watch a group of people all out of their comfort zone." Pete from Melbourne "In Fiction on BBC One right now, I think it's fantastic. It's really moving, and the performances are wonderful. I don't understand some of the casting choices, because I think the roles are not very good, and they all look about 13 years old." Stacy from Alexandria, Louisiana "I am watching The Bletchley Circle on Channel 4. It is a remake of the classic 1970s series which starred Michael Grade and Christopher Cazenove. It is set at Bletchley Park in 1945 and featured Stephen Graham and Mark Gatiss. It is based on a true story. It's brilliant." Karen from Dorset "I am really enjoying the new drama on BBC One about a young woman (played by Kerry Fox) whose life is turned upside down when she becomes a carer for her alcoholic mother. It's heart-breaking. I think the style is very restrained and the acting is just wonderful." John from Northamptonshire "Damages is one of the best I have seen. In it, Californian lawyers (Damages star Glenn Close, Jeffrey Dean Morgan and Teri Hatcher) are hired by insurance companies to find out if the insurance companies' claims to be fraudulent are true. It's a cleverly plotted drama with a lot of twists and turns." Anna from London "I started watching the new ITV3 drama Sacred Lies
