Taught and books on Photoshop Taught and books on Photoshop are your two best resources. Everything you need to know about using this program is available in its documentation, Adobe Books (which can be accessed online at www.adobe.com), and the free-access Web site at www.adobe.com/images/products/photoshop.html. And then there are the books and publications, a number of which are listed in the "Resources" section, later in this chapter. The major trade publications for Photoshop are Adobe Photoshop Magazine: www.adobe.com/products/photoshop-magazine. If you subscribe to Photoshop Magazine, you can view the latest issues on the Web site at any time or subscribe and receive each edition of the magazine. Photoshop Sourcebook: www.adobe.com/products/photoshop-sourcebook. The Photoshop Sourcebook is a DVD that features the best Photoshop tutorials on the market. Photoshop For Dummies: www.dummies.com. Photoshop For Web Designers: www.dummies.com. Photoshop is a feature-rich, yet easy-to-use application that was created to eliminate the need to hire highly skilled graphic professionals to do simple imaging tasks. Figure 4-1 shows a typical image editing window in Photoshop. FIGURE 4-1: A typical Photoshop editing window. The left side of the screen features a window that displays layers: groups of picture elements that together form an image. The individual elements in a group are like the pages in a book. You open the image into this window by placing it there. You then select the elements that you want to

Q: filter collection in jquery I have two text input fields. I want to validate whether both text fields are having data. I have used.each() method and ajax get method to get the data of both text input fields in two javascript variables. Now i want to check whether both text fields are having data or not? A: Use.is() method like: if ($('#field1').is(':empty') && $('#field2').is(':empty')) { //empty field is exist } A: I think you should check the length of text fields like this: $('#field1, #field2').each(function() { if ($(this).val().length == 0) { //both empty } }); It's better to use prop() method for text fields, because this method works correctly with disabled fields. Q: New column based on names of multiple same columns in a list I'm trying to code a formula that will create a new column based on the names of multiple columns in a list. Here's what the result should look like in Excel I've included 2 simple instances of the list the formula would be applied to. I'd prefer to code this using =XLOOKUP or =IFERROR with no VBA or macros if possible =IFERROR(VLOOKUP(A2,'Sheet1'!A:A,2),'V') =IFERROR(VLOOKUP(A4,'Sheet1'!A:A,2),'V') The part that I'm having trouble with is making the formula work when there are multiple columns in the list. A: You could achieve that with Evaluate formula: '#' indicates the cell where the formula should be pasted =VLOOKUP(A2,'Sheet1'!A:A,2,'Sheet1'!A:A,") '#' gives the same result as VLOOKUP(A2,'Sheet1'!
